PROJECTS

The following projects were developed as team efforts over the course of several months to create fully functional commercial web apps. They required the use of various tools in the Rails framework to setup relational database structures, call and create APIs, authenticate and authorize different types of users, create static and dynamic web pages, and add required Javascript animations and AJAX interactions.

MealScope
A twist on the the typical restaurant review website, where users can rate and discover the best meals available in a certain area, regardless of which restaurant serves them.
